“ Mandy, words cannot describe the shock, hurt, and just utter disbelief we all are feeling right now. Your mom has upheld herself the best she can so far, and Brandon... I honestly don't think your brother has fully processed it all quite yet. I know I sure haven't. My side of the family can't express their love, support and condolences enough. Nobody can. You'll never be forgotten, but just to make sure, your brother and I's daughter will have her Aunt Amanda's middle name; Clair-Jane Hope Robertson. It sucks you won't get to meet your one and only niece, because I knew how excited you were to meet her. It warms my heart rereading your messages talking about wanting to come to NC to see her after she is born. Just know that we all miss you something terrible. Not all the "best wishes" and "I'm sorry's" could replace, or refill, the emptiness we all have right now. I think one last look at your smile could shine a little light over us all. You were a kick ass sister in law, that's for sure. I know you'd be an even better aunt to Brandon and I's precious baby girl. Fly high and rest easy, Mandy. Don't worry about your mom and brother, I'm here for them.

-Much love,

Your Sister In Law, Kassye Robertson.

“ Amanda would come to my house and we would talk about our faith and our love for God. She had a smile that would light up the room when she walked in. I will miss her smile and our long talks.

“ Seems like just yesterday we were sitting up at Frazee school chilling out on the swings just enjoying life. I will miss that smile and how no matter how rough it got you were always there to talk to. You will be missed!

“ I'll miss her smile. Every time I seen her she would always have a beautiful smile. When she came to church I'd always get a hug and she'd say love you and I'd do the same. She would brighten up the room with her smile. She will be greatly missed . Again; I love you Amanda Hope Durham. RIP
