“ We were not friends in school in fact it's safer to say we were more like enemies than friends. We were from different worlds but then we both grew up. You found me on FB through mutual contacts and I am glad I had grown enough to accept that friend request. You even offered to help with paperwork for my dad when I didn't even know you had been paying attention to my posts. You reached out and I saw that as an olive branch. An olive branch I am glad I accepted, not because it was paperwork but because I felt it was your way of making amends and I was happier about that. Rest In Peace now my friend. Love, Sheryl Wilson

“ Oh, where do I begin? We became instant friends our freshman year. I was so jealous of your gorgeous smile, perfect hair, closet full of name brand clothes, most with the tags still on them, and amazing body, even though you never seen it. You were your parents most prized possession. The many nights we stayed the night with each other, the long hours on the phone, the prank calls we'd make to some teachers then to get caught by them and talk to them for hours. Ordering pepperoni Pizza with extra sauce and cheese from the Pizza Barn. You were always there for me, even when I needed to get away from home, I knew I had a place to go. And thanks to social media we remained friends all these years later. We went our separate ways after high school and lead very different lives but still remained friends. You have given me legal advice when Eric and I lost his dad, you offered my son a place to stay if he were to choose Rose Hullman for his college, and doing this without even knowing him showed me you were still the most caring and giving friend. You mailed us a pair of football cleats when our son starting college football. You even offered Eric and I are place to stay while we were in Terre Haute for college cross country and football. I wish we would have at least gotten together for dinner. You bragged about your two wonderful children, I know they were the light of your life. I'm going to miss your gorgeous pics, hilarious posts, and most of all I'm going to miss your friendship. Rest easy, dear friend, our fond memories will carry on forever. Say hello to Becky for me and enjoy a day shopping til you drop up there. Love you always, Jacki Jo....

“ My heart goes out to Jacki's family. I have such FUN memories of spending time with Jacki as a kid. My family moved away from Rushville when I was in the 4th grade, but I would continue to spend a week with her each summer for several years after that. I have great memories of Jacki, Becki, Jack, and Lori. All so funny and full of life. I recall great memories swimming in the Webb's pool, playing in their barn, driving the Le Car around on the country roads, and playing with their dog, Blue. You are all in my prayers.

“ Today I got the news that one is never prepared to hear. My heart is broken. I know that is what one is supposed to say in a time like this, but it is genuinely broken. You have been a friend to me. You have loved my children. You have stood beside me and helped me fight for my son in my darkest hours. You have been my friend. I wish I had not missed your last 2 phone calls. That I could have heard your voice and talked to you. That I could have stood with you during your darkest hours. I love you JJ. I know you were not everyone's cup of tea, but you were a dear friend to me.

We climbed up on that roof and my goofy butt jumped off the roof onto the balcony and we got in lol. I had a little pain riding my bike home and later that next morning I found out that my ankle was broke. I still to this day remember that like it was yesterday. I can never say that I will understand why. I will continue to pray for your family for healing and understanding. Spread your wings Jacki fly and be free sweetie.*

“ I can't fathom this at this moment. I have so many memories with Jacki. We cleaned that brown house by the covered bridge top to bottom so we were allowed to do something that night. We said we were doing one thing and did another. Jacki was determined to get what she wanted and Scott Walker was one of them. She didn't care who she had to fight nor what hurdles were in the way. If she wanted it she went after it. Her red Pontiac Firebird with T tops cruised many country roads. Her parents underground pool hosted many parties, get togethers and sleepovers to her friends. Many times doing makeovers and dressing up in front of her closet that had sliding glass doors. Jacki was tall and played basketball and volleyball. She hated that she had big feet, most of us girls were in a 7 or 8 while Jacki was in a 12 lol. She loved to dress up fancy for an evening out but I watched her deliver a pony out in the barn. We rode a quad and shot hops in the barn lot. Girly girl and tomboy both. I only met her children still as babies, but she couldn't have been a prouder mom. They were her biggest award ever, no trophy from any sports could make her stand as tall and smile as big as her children! Life takes us down many roads and up mountains but I was sure Jacki could conquer any feat. May you rest peacefully now along side your mother, watch over your dad for us, your siblings, family and friends miss you dearly and you would be happy to know your the center of attention, my boisterous, happy go lucky, determined, strong willed friend. I will think of you often.
