“ Heros are not athletes that make millions of dollars for playing a game that they love, nor are they actors/actresses/entertainers that make way too much money either....Mel Barton is a hero, a man that fought with every single breath in his body to live his life, to be able to be with his family and is friends; he faced fear and the unknown to grasp at a chance that he might be lucky enough to get another decade, another year, another month , or even another day. The majority of us never know the kind of battle that Mel has faced for many years, we take our days for granted, we just expect to be ok. Mel and so many of our friends have been fighting with every ounce of energy for their lives - I for one will remember him (and all the others) as I carry on my day to day activities and try to keep in mind that all of the opportunities I have to make each day count! Mel- when you see Holli , will you give her a huge hug from her family !

“ Growing up as best friends and next door neighbors is one of the best and lifelong memories I will ever have. From all the days of GI Joes and army men, to playing wiffleball and football in the yard across the alley from our house, to the bike rides and leaning out our windows on the second floor of our houses to pass toys and popcorn back and forth when we were suppose to be grounded and not talking to each other and on and on I can go of those wonderful childhood years that we shared together. It was the best childhood you could ever have I do believe. I remember him getting his drivers liscense the year before me and then while I was taking drivers ed, he let me drive and we passed a drivers ed. car on a back road outside of town with other friends. We laughed so hard that day. I was priviledged to be in his wedding and whenever I would come home from college we would touch base and hang out for awhile. Mel was a good friend and he will be missed by so many. My prayers are with you as you go through this time of loss of a a brother who was too young to leave us.

*Peace and Blessings,

“ Mel and I rode back and forth to IU East Richmond for several years in the early 90's and also worked together at Copeland...he had the greatest sense of humor and had a way of making you feel at ease, almost a calming effect.....always putting things in proper perspective. He was the best dad, a good friend, a hard worker, and so so smart! But most of all, he was the kindest--the most gentle human being I've ever known....never heard him say a bad thing about anyone, regardless of what he was going through himself...For me, Mel was an excellent example of how to do your very very best, then leave the rest to The Lord...I will miss him.

“ Angie, Susan and family, Mel was like one of our family members. When he was a teenager, he confided in me many of his deep feelings, he and Lonnie shared their love of antique cars (Studebakers in particular). He was like a brother to our children. He will be missed very much. Love you all. Clairetta Bolyard and family.

“ Having lived next door to Mel on Main Street for many years there are so many memories I hold. Many center around on the GI Joe unit we formed as kids (calling our group of GI Joe's the Leatherneck Raiders) and the many adventures we had playing in the alleys and backyards of our homes. It was not very long ago that I talked with Mel about his love of antiques and old toys, specifically GI Joes, as I had started collecting them years ago myself. He was a good friend and I am saddened by his death.
